Ultimately, everything that christl produces is taste-forming. The challenge with taste is that it is different for everyone and, because of that, can only be perceived individually. We have made exclusive individuality our corporate guiding principle.

This implementation requires a lot of practical experience, but also a high degree of technological know-how. So, on the one hand, to have a confident feeling for the right taste, but on the other hand, also being able to rely on the most modern process technologies.

Both are needed to be able to offer our customers an attractive win-win situation: Our customers win in the market through the individuality of their products and their customers gain confidence in the exclusivity of taste and the quality.This is what christl SpiceTechnology feels like.

christl spareribs rustic 0161157

Barbecuing is the most traditional and versatile cooking method in the world. When people talk about barbecuing in Europe, one of the first thoughts is to cook sausages or a steak in a short time. This involves hot, fast and direct cooking. If you look at barbecuing worldwide, you will quickly realize that the cooking method mentioned is only a fraction of the cooking methods using fire. If food is prepared using fire and smoke, there is going to be barbecuing!

From a global perspective, there is no getting around the USA when it comes to BBQ. They are well-known for preparing meat at low temperatures, indirectly, for several hours (low & slow).

The so-called "longjobs". Here, a whole beef brisket can take more than 20 hours to reach the desired core temperature of over 90 °C. This effort is rewarded with a butter-tender, smoky piece of meat that doesn't have to hide from a first-class steak.

spice blends.

christl Brisket BBQ Rub 01610022

In addition to the beef brisket, the "Holy Trinity of BBQ" is made of "Pulled Pork" and "Spareribs" in the USA. This Holy Trinity is one of the royal classes of BBQ and is perfectly rounded off with the matching christl
